

EDITORIAL

It can be said that there are two different factors that determine social behavior. One of them is motor movements, that is, hand and mimic movements, while the other one is language. Therefore, language is a powerful indicator of individuals' social behavior. Linguistics is of great importance, especially because of the transmission of information through language, along with the issues of who we are and where we come from. It has brought multicultural and multilingual education with it in the rapidly globalizing world. Integration issues, depending on the language, constitute a general agenda.

Individuals express themselves through language about what they need and how these needs should be met. Societies, on the other hand, state what they need and how these requirements will be met through social sciences. However, social sciences and humanities offer possible solutions to the general demands and problems of societies. Based on these arguments, it was decided to establish the Journal of Research in Social Sciences and Language (JSSAL). Accordingly, it is hoped that JSSAL will make significant contributions to both social sciences and linguistics.

In terms of supporting scientific activities, contributing to science and society, it is important to increase the activities and publications and to produce quality publications.

We welcome all academic studies involved in the development of research in the field of social sciences and linguistics with great satisfaction. JSSAL is a journal that evaluates and publishes book reviews and conceptual analysis studies as well as research and review articles on social sciences and linguistics from you esteemed researchers.

JSSAL proudly presents its first issue. A total of six research articles were accepted for publication in the first issue. Four of these articles were written on the basis of quantitative research methods, while two of them were written as review studies.

The work titled "Prediction of Narcissistic Personality Tendencies in University Students in Terms of Some Variables" Derya EKICI, paper titled "The Relationship between Grammar and Vocabulary Levels and Their Writing Skills of Those Who Learn Turkish as a Foreign Language" Hasan AKSOY, "An Overview to Private (Foundation) Universities in Turkey from the Terms of Society and Education "by Ibrahim KURT," The Role of ICT in Higher Education in Selected Places during COVID-19 ", Madhumati Ryavappa Shettar, Zainabbi Sayed Mohammed Lathiwale and Maya Kulhalli, paper titled "Teenage Marriage and High School Dropout among Poor Girls: A Narrative Review for Family Pathways in Bangladesh" Emaj Uddin and most recently Yusuf Özdemir for "Analysis of the Relationship Among Leadership Styles, School Culture and Student Achievement". Many thanks go to each of these authors who contributed to the first issue.

I would like to thank the DARIAH-DE Coordination Office, located at Göttingen State and University Library, whose DARIAH-DE Repository provides a cost-free publication opportunity for research data.

Again, thank you very much Academics in Solidarity and the German Federal Ministry of Education and Research (BMBF) for providing financial support for JSSAL and granting plagiarism checker program.

With all kinds of support during the establishment process of the journal; I especially thank Dr. Yasin ASLAN, Dr. Yusuf ÖZDEMİR, Dr. Mazlume DEMİRCİ, Dr. Ibrahim KURT and Yavuz Selim ÜLKÜ. Hope to see you in the next issues of JSSAL.

Stay well.
